WIN - Work Initiative Network

The WIN program is a collaboration between Child Support and Workforce Services to help you find and maintain employment to meet your child support obligations.

Employment

You and your WIN team will identify options for training, education, and employment that are designed specifically with your skills and goals in mind.

Child Support Payment Modification

Your child support order may be revised and possibly adjusted.

Delayed Enforcement Action

Your driver's license may be reinstated, or your bench warrant may be lifted by actively participating in WIN.

Practical Support

Your WIN team can provide a variety of practical support to help you get the right job, manage your finances, or possibly even pay for mental health counseling or substance abuse counseling and general support needs.

WYOMING CHILD SUPPORT PROGRAM
SERVING FAMILIES THROUGH EXCELLENCE

Program of the Wyoming Department of Family Services

The Wyoming Child Support Program (CSP), in partnership with the Wyoming Department of Workforce Services (DWS), established the Work Initiative Network (WIN) Program to improve earning outcomes for non-custodial parents (NCPs). The program utilizes a coaching and case management approach that increases the participants' capacity to move towards permanent unsubsidized employment so they can make reliable child support payments, which will improve the financial well-being of both parents and their children.

MISSION

To provide person-centered, relationship-based, and goal-driven employment and training related services to non-custodial parents through intensive coaching and case management.

WORK INITIATIVE NETWORK (WIN) PROGRAM PURPOSE

The Wyoming Child Support Program (CSP), in partnership with the Wyoming Department of Workforce Services (DWS), established the WIN Program to improve earning outcomes for non-custodial parents (NCPs). The program utilizes a coaching and case management approach that increases the participants' capacity to move towards permanent unsubsidized employment so they can make reliable child support payments, which will improve the financial well-being of both parents and their children.

Many of the obligors upon whom children and custodial parents are relying have challenges paying child support.

- These obligors tend to face significant employment barriers, including criminal history, limited education, and less than ideal work histories.
- WIN will identify effective strategies for improving reliable payment of child support by unemployed or underemployed noncustodial parents, with the intent of improving children's well-being and reducing public assistance costs.
